

A LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT

Dear Friends,

During my career, it has been my privilege to travel the world. I have seen great cities and tiny villages; dined in elegant mansions and shared cups of tea in humble cottages. Everywhere I went, people welcomed me into their homes and I learned so much from each of them.

I learned that we are connected by our shared humanity—how we take care of each other, how we depend on each other, how we love each other. And I learned that a home is not a type of structure or building. It is not defined by how grand it is or by how humble. Home is where we feel safe, cared for, and cared about. Where there is companionship, laughter, understanding, and, most of all, love.

We often say that Pines of Sarasota is our residents' home. You may wonder how that could be true of a place as big as Pines. Here is the answer. At Pines of Sarasota, our residents are safe, cared for, and cared about. There is companionship, laughter, and understanding here. And there is love.

Pines is our residents' home and we believe no one should have to leave their home because age and illness have depleted their financial resources. We hope you share that belief.

With your help, we can make sure our skilled nursing residents can stay in their home at Pines, even when their money runs out, and that laughter, understanding and love will always live here.

To learn more about our mission and how you can help, call me at 941.955.6293 or email jginn@pinesfoundation.org.

Yours for a better community,

Janet K. Ginn, CFRE
President

Janet K. Ginn, CFRE
President
Pines of Sarasota Foundation

“

We believe no one should have to leave their home because age and illness have depleted their financial resources.